

Randhir Sahni Honored as TARC's "Elected Official of the Year"

HOUSTON, SEPTEMBER 28, 2009 – Randhir Sahni was honored as "Elected Official of the Year" by the Texas Asian Republican Caucus (TARC) at a banquet ceremony on Friday, September 25. Sahni, president of Llewelyn-Davies Sahni (LDS), a leading architecture and urban design firm in Houston, is a former Councilman for the city of Piney Point. Each year, the TARC hosts this event to recognize outstanding service and accomplishment by a local Asian-American elected official in representing their community.

Sahni served three terms on the Piney Point City Council from 2004 to 2009. His service included implementing the Soldier's Creek Flood Relief Project. He was a candidate for mayor of Piney Point in 2008.

"It was a pleasure serving my community on the City Council, and I feel privileged that my service was recognized by this organization," Sahni said. "The TARC does great work for citizens in our community and throughout the state."

Also at the ceremony, New Orleans United States Congressman Joseph Cao was honored as "Statesman of the Year."
